1.0 Progress and Achievements in the Seychelles Education System

The Education Reform Action Plan acknowledges that over the last three decades the Government of Seychelles has demonstrated a sustained commitment to the development and improvement of education and training and human resources development.

Through the implementation of a series of Education Reforms (1978, 1991, 1998) and development plans, notable achievements have been recorded and considerable progress in education and training have been made. These achievements include the following:

- Access to education and training at all levels to Seychellois has broadened.
- The national curriculum and assessment frameworks have been reviewed.
- The education structure has been adjusted.
- Regulatory frameworks have been developed and implemented. (Education Policy 2000, Education Act 2004, SQA Act 2005)
- Professional development programmes for school leaders and teachers have been implemented.
- A quality assurance mechanism has been introduced.
- The adult literacy rate has improved to considerably.
- The programme of training secondary teachers to degree level has been maintained and has raised the overall standard and quality of teaching.
- The provision of a range of new infrastructure at the primary, secondary and post-secondary levels, the upgrading of existing ones and the building of new ones.
- The introduction in 2002 of an MBA Degree in Educational Leadership, through which some seventy (70) school leaders will have been trained by the end of this year to provide improved leadership and direction to our educational institutions.
- The establishment of the Seychelles Qualification Authority in 2005, with a mandate to develop and implement a National Qualifications Framework (NQF) and connected matters.
- The high level of human development rating on the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) Human Development Index (HDI).
The necessary pre-requisites to achieve and sustain Goal 2: Achieving Universal Primary Education, of the Millennium Development Goals (MDG), in place.

2.0 The Need for Further Reform

As Seychelles repositions itself to adapt to and take advantage of globalisation, necessary adjustments are being made to the direction and strategies for sustainable social and economic development for the continued well-being of the nation.

The focus and objectives of national development over the next ten years, as outlined in Seychelles Strategy 2017, call for the further transformation of the education and training system, so that it will respond successfully to the challenge of providing the quantitative and qualitative human resources requirements for sustainable national development.

In considering the building blocks for a more efficient and effective education and training system, the Education Reform Action Plan acknowledges that there is a need to build on the achievements of the last 30 years through the policy of comprehensive education.

In identifying the strategies for transforming the education and training system, due consideration has been given to the following principles:

- Improved participation of stakeholders in the management and delivery of education and training.
- Judicious rationalisation of resources for education and training.
- Greater responsibility and accountability on the part of providers of the service.
- Improved monitoring and evaluation of the education and training services.

3.0 Background to Education Reform Action Plan

Following his consideration of the report on the Seychelles education system presented by Dr. John Nolan, an independent consultant, in July 2008, the President set up a National Education and Training Strategy Committee (NETSC) in August 2008 to provide a clear actionable road-map to reform the education and training system, with a view to creating a high quality education and human resources development system that remains responsive to national development needs and which enables learners at all levels to achieve their potential.

Supported by several working groups and through consultations of various stakeholders, the NETSC produced an Education Reform Action Plan with recommendations and targets in thirteen critical areas for reform, which was presented to the President in December 2008.
After considering the NETSC Report, the President directed that the following five priority areas be worked on:

- Providing for the Diversity of Educational Needs and National Development Priorities.
- Guaranteeing Quality Education.
- Improving the Quality of Teachers.
- Improving the Governance of Educational Institutions
- Creating Responsible and Empowered Students.

For each priority area, a number of themes for reform were elaborated. An Education Reform Oversight Committee (EDROC) was set up in March 2009 to prepare an Education Reform Action Plan for the identified priority areas and themes.

A Taskforce with multi-stakeholders representation was established for each of the five priority areas to provide guidance and support to the working groups charged with the elaboration of action plans for each of the themes for the priority areas.

At various stages of the development of the Education Reform Action Plan, stakeholders and the general public were kept informed of progress through media interviews.

To better prepare members of the working groups for the tasks, workshops were organized for them.
